As the Dollar, Pound Weaken

By Peter Milius WASHINGTON, NOV. 14 (WP). -Wholesale prices raced ahead another 23 per cent last month, the government said today, but there were some signs in the numbers that the basic inflation rate in the economy may be lessening

That basic rate could fall a lot and still be high, however. The Bureau of Labor Statistics said its wholesale price index has now gone up 22.6 per cent in the last year, the most in any 12-month span since 1947.

The increase in the last 12 months is about two-fifths of the total increase in the last 12 years. The hopeful signs in today's statistics did not extend to food prices. The hureau said that prices in the farm-food sector led the way upward in October, rocketing ahead 4.7 per cent after the usual adjustments for normal seasonal fluctuations.

These wholesale price increases will show up at retail in the months ahead. Some have already. The bureau said wholesale prices of "consumer-finished" foods-foods ready to go into: procesy stores rose an adjusted 4 per cent last month.

Says West Must Act

Oil Crisis Survival Plan Set Forth by Kissinger

CHICAGO. Nor. 14 (AP).-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said today that Western Europe and Japan must immediately join the United States in a cooperative effort to mect the global energy crisis or they will face international chaos and an ultimate loss of freedom.

In a speech prepared for a University of Chicago fund-rea-ing dinner, Mr. Kissinger aimed his most militant words to date more at the industrialized nations than at the oil-producing countries who triggered the oil crisis. "It is our liberty that, in the end, is at etake," he said, "and it is only through the concerted actions of the industrialized democ-

Mr. Kissinger outlined a fivepoint program for dealing both with the supply of oil and the problems arising from the tremendous flow of Western currency to the petroleum-producing

As if to underline the crucial importance he places on solidarity among the industrialized world, only one of the five points dealt specifically with the producing countries.

The Program The points were:

· An acceleration of national programs of energy conservation, primarily by reducing demand, so that dependence on imported oil is cut over the next decade "to no more than one-fifth" of the industrialized world's total energy consumption.

· Continuation of the developsources of energy, with the United States, Japan and Western e making a "major ward nuclear power, coal, gas and other sources. · Development of a program "to protect against oil emergencies and to safeguard the international financial system," which he said is under intolerable strains hecause of high oil prices.

As part of this point, Mr. Kissinger proposed creation of a common loan and guarantee facility to redistribute or recycle among the industrialized nations in the next two years np to $50 hillion of the money being reinvested in the West by the oil-rich nations.

· The industrial West must continue aiding at least at current levels the underdeveloped countries that are hardest hit by the high cost of oil. Mr. Kissinger included food aid in this category.

· Only after "the consumers have taken some collective steps toward a durable solution" will it be possible to bring the oilproducing nations into a conference "to establish a fair and durable long-term relationship." Mr. Kissinger said that the oil producers now. "are shie to manipulate prices at will and with apparent impunity... They are not moved by our alarms about the health of the Western world."

The only way to convince them of the need for restraint, the secretary of state indicated, was for the West to develop a strong, determined and unified program to meet any further pressures from the producers.

Paris Plan Rejected By refusing U.S. participation in any large consumer-producer oil conferences Mr. Klasinger directly attacked programs proposed hy some European countries, particularly France. The Paris government bas sought such a large-scale conference while pushing for separate, bilateral arrangements with the oil-rich Arch nations. Mr. Kissinger said that such an approach only weakens the West and moreuses the financial problem. -Until the consumers develop a congrent approach to their o'n problems," he said, discussions with the producers vill only repeat, in a multilateral form," the arguments that have been so unfruitful in previous oil nations not to raise prices while the West struggles for a common position, Such an effort, he said sternly, "would be dis-ruptive and dangerous."

The United States would never talerate any use of oil to extort changes in hasic American policy, he said, adding. "The United States will never permit itself to

By Juan de Onis

NABATTYE, Lebazon, Nov. 14 do as the PLO requested and help NYT .-- Long-range Israeli artillery shelled this commercial center and other towns in southern Lebanon early today, killing six persons and wounding at least 20. [Israel said its gunners fired into Lebanon today in retalization for a rocket attack on the northern part of the country yesterday. at the time of the debut of the Palestine Liberation Organization before the United Nations, United Press International reported.

The attack was interpreted widely in Lebanon as an expression of Israeli anger over the support given the Palestinian cause by President Suletman Frantieh of Lebanon, who spoke today before the UN General Assembly.

Arab Spokesman Mr. Franjieh, a Christian Arab. was chosen by the Arab League to present the support of a group of countries in Africa and the Liiddle East for the Palestinian claim; to land now occupied by Israef and to assert the rights of Palesimian refugees, of whom there are 200,000 in Lebanon, to a state of their own.

IMr. Franjieh urged the UN to restore Palestinian "national rights," the Associated Press reported.

(He said Israel is "pursuing with its unjustifiable acts of violence" hundreds of thousands of Palestinians in Lehanon, "attacking the civilian population of Lebanon, repeating as recently as yesterday afternoon."]

The artillery attack on this town in the predawn darkness marked the first time Israeli howitzers bave fired so deeply into Lebanese territory. Twentyfive shells hit in and about this town of 20,000 persons in a hilly farming district eight miles north of the border with Israel.

There were two craters four feet deep in the main square, and the window glass of a large new mosque was scattered on the ground. Six stone-end-rement buildings were demolished and 10 automobiles damaged.

Townspeople said the shells began to fall outside the residential area shortly after midnight and then scored hits in the town itself, which has a Palestinian refugee camp on its outskirts.

Egypt Would Bar All Vessels Even After It Is Clear

maintain that Mr. Sadat expected progress toward an Israeli-Arah settlement to be much swifter than it turned out to be in reality. The Egyptians assumed that there would be a second Israeli withdrawal long before the clearing operations in the canal would be finished, Egyptian sources say. Mr. Fahmy's statement has the effect of making the opening of the canal a crucial bargaining point in the talks that Mr. Kissinger is expected to hold with the two sides next month, probably during a new visit to the Mr. Fahmy said, "The Suez Canal will not be reopened to world shipping until there has been a complete Israell withdrawal east of the canal so as to make the waterway and the citles safe against Israeli surprise [Mr. Fahmy said Egypt will not reopen the canal until Is-Sinai, enough to guarantee safety of shipping against any at-tacks," but did not specify how deep Israel should pull hack, the Associated Press reported.]

He made a distinction between international shipping and Israeli flagships. The latter, he said, would be barred from the canal until a final settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict had been achieved, whereas the canal would be opened to international traffic (Continued on Page 2 Cel 3)

"It's not like the war, when we had a common enemy we could stand up against." says a London real estate broker. "It's just de-pression and backsliding and gloom. Maybe there won't always he a Britsin."

The malaise is so pervasive that many Britons appear to feel that the country's troubles are beyond solution-at least for the present. Thus, the autumn budget presented by the government this week is being viewed as just another palliative that stands little chance of success in the fight against economic stegnation.

The atmosphere seems much gloomier than a year ego, even though it is unlikely that the coming winter could be as dif-ficult as the last, when the coal miners were on strike, gasoline and heating oil were in short supply, public lighting was sharpcurtailed and much of British industry was on a three-dey workweek to save energy.

At the same time, expensive nightciubs like Annabel's, Les Ambassadeurs and the White Elephant are jemmed with revelers. 'It's like the last days of Rome," says an Englishman at the crowded bar at Annabel's. "Our money isn't going to be worth anything tomorrow, so we might as well spend it."

Sound reasons exist for much of the worry and disillusionment. Inflation is running at an ennual rate approaching 20 per cent. The nation's trade deficit on a monthly basis has been nearly $1 billion—higher than it used to be annually.

Extensive Interruptions

Strikes continue to disrupt British life, as workers try to win pay increases to keep abreast of the increase in living costs. In London alone in recent weeks there have been extensive interruptions in mail service, milk deliveries, garbege collection and

In the farmlands, cattlemen have been sending their calves to elaughter rather than fattening them, because the prices they can receive for mature animals do not cover the cost of raising them. At the same time, consumers are huying less beef, he-

East Bloc's Plan For Troop Cuts Rejected by West

VIENNA, Nov. 14 (UPI) .- The Western allies today turned down a Warsaw Pact proposal for reducing armed forces in Central Europe, declaring that it does not differ from previous such proposals.

"The essential elements of the latest Eastern proposal do not differ from previous proposals and therefore do not meet Western consent," a spokesman for the Western allies said at a news conference.

He referred to a Warsaw Pact the Vienna conference on troop reductions. The proposal called on the Warsaw Pact and NATO to reduce their Central Europe forces by 20,000 men each during 1975, beginning with Soviet and American troops

A Western spokesman described the plans as a "reincarnation" of earlier Communist proposals. But Communist delegates said the difference hetween this and their earlier proposals was that the new plan met Western demands that the two superpowers reduce forces first.

Mr. Morton, who is secretary of the interior and is regarded as one of hir. Ford's closest political advisors, said that despite the Presiden! pre-election decision ast month not to ask Congress to increase the tax, the matter Tas still alive.

Mandate' by Ford

"I don't feel the President in his mandate to me" as chairman of the Energy Resources Council "has foreclosed any of these a discussion of energy-conserva-tion measures. The discussion took piece at a press breakfast given by the secretary at the interior Department.

Later, Ronald Nessen, the President's press secretary, said of the tax rise: "There is no change I'm aware of to the President's opposition to it."

Mr. Morton, asked if Mr. Ford hadn't foreclosed asking Congress to raise the tax, now 4 cents a gallon, said: "He foreclosed it on the basis that it wasn't a do-able thing in Congress." The secretary assed that the President might yet accept it as part of a larger fiscal and energy rackage to be shaped in consultation with congressional Demccrats.

Mr. Morton, a former Republican representative from Maryland, said that in light of the election results "the Democrats dn have a mandate."

"The old bread-and-butter issues are there," he added. Watergate was a factor, he said, but economic fear is what changes the complexion of the House and

Norway Curbs Feeding Grain to Animals

By Dan Morgan

ROME, Nov. 14 (WP),-Norway has become the first of the rich, Western nations to try to curb the eating of grain by animalswhich is considered harmful to the health of the human consumer of the animals and wasteful of the world's limited grain župply.

Government policies to change the population's eating habits, conserve grain and lower the country's dependence on imports of feed were explained at the UN's World Food Conference here today by members of the Norwegian delegation.

"I think the United States can do something also—and I think you should," Prof. Kaare Norum, of the University of Oslo, said at a news conference.

Norway's efforts to get the food cooference to adopt a resolution declaring that the "diet of the developed countries should not be taken as a model of a satisfactory state of nutrition" have focused attention on the growing problem of overconsumption in the West. A number of delegates say that if the Western countries cut down their consumption of grain-fat-tened beef, hogs and poulty, millions of tons of grain would be freed for export to needy countries where burnan beings eat grain directly.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Nov. 14 (AP) .- Members of the Pennfield Church of the Nazarene have burned their television sets because of "sinful" programs.

"The programs are poisoning our children's minds," said Mary Lou Bax, whose family threw its $500 color television set into a fire at the church's parking lot Sunday night.

About 400 members of the congregation helped burn is television sets Sunday night, destroying about $1,400 worth a equipment. About 20 of the 130 families which belong to the church said that they planned a less drastic step—selling their sets and donating the money to the church.

The action was spurred by comments from evangelist Fast Wilde of Hart, Mich., who spoke at the church last week or the evils of TV programming.

Good Causes and Bad Cases in the UN General Assembly, two good causes were at issue: the state of Israel and the fate of the Palestinian people. And the advocates of both made ont bad cases for their respective clients.

The appearance of Yassir Arafat in the podium, a professed revolutionary against a state that is not only a member but, in terms of international law. a creation of the UN, was in itself a grievous error by the General Assembly, one that was compounded by the more zealous supporters of Israel in the United States by threats and demonstrations against him, as well as by Israel itself through attacks on guerrilla bases in

And Arafat's long speech, capitalizing on his newly-won world forum, was not only replete with radical jargon and dubious history, but set up the proposition that the UN reverse the course it set 26 years ago. wipe out the state of Israel and set up in place of that functioning and well-established organism a new covereignty, embracing all of Palestine, and based on no traditions more substantial than the commando groups which have arisen there since the end of World War II. To be sure, Arafat said he was holding ont an olive branch, and that he hoped to see a Palestine in which Moslem. Christian and Jew would live in peace and equality. But what is there in the brief and Molent history of Palestinian nationalism aspect of their joint history.

At the opening of the debate on Palestine since the breakup of the Ottoman Empire. or in Arafat'e own career, that provides any promise of such a conclusion?

The Israeli reply, delivered by its chief UN delegate. Yosef Tekoah, made as much of the Palestine Liberation Organization's "murderous ideology," as Arafat had done of Israeli "barbarism and terrorism." The death and destruction that the Holy Land has known from the beginning of the British Mandate, to go heck no further into history, is a depressing record of man's inhumanity to man, But any reasonable effort to disentangle the twisted rights and aspirations of the races and religions that dwell on, or look toward, that fated stretch of land cannot deal wholly in mutual recriminations, nor in absolutes; And Israel apparently persists as strongly in opposing any Palestinian state, apart from Jordan, as Arafat's following insists upon its claim to all of Palestine. Neither of these contentions holds out any prospect of peace for the Middle East.

The Palestinian issue is too complex, the bitterness underlying it too intense, the practical problems of living and working in a iand which is rich only in the ideas that have dawned there too great, to be resolved by mere words or handclaps. Both sides must make more genuine effort at understanding, of themselves, each other and the territory they inhabit, if they are to break the cycle of violent words and deeds that dooms them to he prisoners of the sterile and wasteful

Pretoria and the UN

The UN General Assembly has done something indefensible, suspending South Africa because an assembly majority wished to protest Pretoria's internal policies. Very few states could pass the arbitrary, interventionist political test which the majority applied to South Africa. What states have not, in the eyes of their adversaries, infringed on human rights or held on to territory not properly their own? The Soviet Union. for instance, has over the years taken territory from some 15 of the 16 states it borders; it is, incrontrovertibly, a police state. All too many African and Arab states practice at home policies of the grimmest and most repressive sort. It is a serious question. moreover, whether the General Assembly's hypocrisy and showboating will belp or hurt the cause of racial justice in Sonth Africa. Does the majority care?

Needless to say, there is not the slightest Justification in the UN Charter for the assembly's action in suspending Pretoria for this current session. On the contrary, the fundamental principle of universality has been violated—the very principle which, many had honed had been confirmed once and for all by the seating of Peking. The United States and 21 other members voted against suspension. We wonder, however, if the United Statee does not condone the assembly action - and thereby encourage the assembly to use the same tactic again, perhaps next against Israel-by continuing to participate in the work of this assembly session. For the United States to suspend its participation until the principle of universality had been reaffirmed would add substance to its belief in that principle, as no speech or vote can. Self-suspension would no more amount to approval of South African apartheid than participation would amount to approval of, say, the slave trade in Saudi Arabia. The United States could continue its work in other branches of the UN. Such a step would be criticized by some other nations, and it would probably nourish -to the detriment of other American interests—the neo-isolationist current in American life. It would be, in short, a difficult and important decision.

Meanwhile, students of international life can contemplate this spectacle On one day the General Assembly removes the seat, and silences the voice and vote, of a duly constituted member, a sovereign state, whose domestic policies it professee to abhor. On the very next day, the same assembly gives a hearing to the chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization—an outfit that is not content merely to object to the internal policies of another member and sovereign etate. Israel, but actually challenges its very existence as a nation. For all that Yassir Arafat's speech on Wednesday was a distinct disappointment to those who hope be will contribute constructively to a Mideast settlement. We happen to believe it is better to impose upon the PLO the responsibility of operating within a political forum than to leave it with no perceived alternative to terror. The very same logic, however, should be applied to Pretoria. The PLO and Pretoria both have their respective places-the former as a guest, the latter as a memberin the General Assembly, and for exactly the same reason: eo that they can better be held to the standards of responsibility and respectability which, ideally, the international community upholds.

President Ford acted with commendable promptness in administering a public rebuke to Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, for his offensive and ignorant remarks about what he termed excessive "Jewish influence" on national policiee. Underscoring his displeasure over misleading and inflammatory statements made by the country's highest-ranking military officer, Mr. Ford bas assured the American people that these views in no way represent the opinions of any other senior military or civilian official in his adminstration. Despite his emphatic denials of anti-Bemitic motives, the general's opinions, which he expressed during a question-andanswer session at a Duke University Law School forum last month, unfortunately can . only be read as a perpetuation of the myths on which bigotry has fed for centuries, here and abroad.

Pentagon regulations clearly prohibit officers on active duty from engaging in political oratory and propaganda activities. By suggesting that a Jewish lobby be held responsible for any hardships that a future Arab oil emhargo might impose on the American people. Gen. Brown has clearly violated that rule. Whatever his intent, the effect of his words was tantamount to inflammatory propaganda. The general's indiscretion underscores the wisdom of keeping the military out of politics and the need to return to a strict interpretation of that principle.

Israel's Austerity Measures

Israel's dramatic austerity measures could hardly have come at a more sensitive moment politically. Its dwindling foreign currency reserves contrast sharply with the lash surpluses enjoyed by the oil-producing Arab countries. Its security is becoming ever more expensive and the balance of power is not shifting in its favor. Some Arabs will doubtless be encouraged to believe that what they have not yet won by war and negotiation they could still win by economic attrition. This is almost certainly to underestimate the resilience of the Israelis and the help which they can still expect from abroad, but the general direction in which the tide is flowing can scarcely bring much comfort to Israel.

By Tad Szulc

WASHINGTON Secretary of State Kissinger has dangerously misjudged Boviet intentions in the Midesit, despite secret personal warnings to him by Chairman Leonid Brezhnev last March in Moscow that there would be no peace in the Mideast if the United States persisted in "going it alone" diplomatically with the Arabs and Israelis. At that time, Brezhnev accused Kis-

Kissinger, in effect, helped to create a situation in which the Arabs, frustrated by the lack of diplomatic "movement" with Israel he had promised them after the 1973 war, have turned again toward Moscow for political and military help. For similar ressons, a new sense of unity against Israel emerged from the recent Rebat summit with the all-out support of the financially powerful oil-producing states.

Arming Syria

The Russians, feeling vindicated, are obviously delighted to oblige. They have been heavily recoming the Systems for commu-time. And all indications are that Soviet military supplies will start flowing anew to Egypt even before Brezhnev visits Cairo in

Only six months after Nixon's and Kissinger's triumphal tour, it is Brezhnev's turn to be hailed once more as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's favorite ally, President Ford's get-acquainted meeting with Brezhnev in Vladivostok late this month might well be overshadowed hy the gathering Mideast crisis.

In the light of this developing situation, it is instructive to look at the secret record of Soviet-American differences including Brezhnev's 1973 warnings that an Arah-Israeli war was in the offing. A part of this record, never before made public, was presented by Brezhney himself to a Western statesman at the Kremlin earlier this year. Even allowing for Brezhnev's self-serving bent, his account is worth pondering.

Speaking of his conferences with Nixon three months before the eruption of the Yom Kipwar, Brezhnev recalled that pur war, Breznnev recome.
"at San Clemente, I kept Nixon up almost all night on the Mid-die East, trying East, trying to convince him the need to act together. Otherwise, there would be an explosion ... Nixon didn't heed my words. And there was an ex-plosion in the Middle East."

But brezhnev told his visitor that afterward "Nixon wrote a letter to me saying he had underesti-mated the gravity of the problem." The United States and the Soviet Union did cooperate in a ... fire. Subsequently, a two-day Arab-Israeli peace conference was convened in Geneva under Sovietamerican co-chairmanship, with only the Byrians staying away. Elssinger quickly concluded. however, that Geneva was the wrong forum because the nego-tiations would bog down in pro-

The Russians inevitably saw it as an end-run to exclude them from Mideast diplomacy. As Brezhnev told his Western visitor, "I berated Kissinger here in Moscow," during the secretary's visit late last March, "for the U.S. behavior in the Middle East." Brezhnev said that "we had agreed at the United Nations and elsewhere that the United States and the Soviet Union would work together to secure peace." But, Brezhnev added, "then Kissinger began a series of ruses, and attempted to go it alone ... We must act together, or there will be no tranquility in the Middle East... Fact of Life

Perhaps. Moscow, after all, is a fact of life in the Mideast. Even to Israel, a conference deadlock would be preferable to the pros-pects of war. The Russians might have been locked in diplomatic situation in which is would have been harder to rearm the Arabs and champion the PLO.

This may be why Kissinger is now rethinking the relative merits of Geneva which, as the Shah of Iran told him the other day, us better than nothing. But with the ascendancy of the

Making a Difference In Famine Situation

By Anthony Lewis

BOSTON-The mind often has difficulty comprehending tragedy in the mass. One death means more to us than numbers. That may belp to explain the slowness of reaction to the world food crisis, with its terrible statistics: 400 million people hungry now, thousands and millions likely to starve to death unless

But now we have begun to understand the human meaning of those statistics, the swollen children and the men dying while they wait in line for food. Many they wait in line for foot in sinericans want to belp. But in the absence of leadership from Washington, what can an in-dividual do? When the problem is so large, what difference can one person or one family make? Oxfam-America, an affiliate of the International Relief Agency, has a modest immediate answer to those questions. It suggests that Americans go without food for 24 hours next Thursday, Nov. 21.

Something to Do

Can such a fast be more than a difference? Doubts came to my mind when I flift heard about what Oxfam calls the fast for a world harvest. Reflection has settled the doubts-has convinced me that this is something worth

One reasoning aspect of the idea is that its sponsors think small They are promoting not through any high-pressure campaign but mostly through letters to church and college groups and the like. They do not pretend that they can solve the whole world food problem.

They only want to begin. The proposal is that money not spent on food next Thursday be sent to Oxfam. Whatever is raised will be useful in Oxfam's small, personal projects to help farmers and villagers around the world raise their own food. But there is a larger significance in the idea. It is a way for Americans to become aware of what is reality for hundreds of millions of people in the world.

No one can pretend that going without food for a day, when you know you will soon be eating plentifully again, is the same as living all the time without assurance of enough to eat. But it is an opening to consciousness, and it does speak directly to the

A premise of our democracy is that individual action can make a difference—that one man's conscience can change a country. Neither Jefferson por Thoresu thought Americans should wait for governments to tell them what to do. It would be grotesque in the extreme if we abandoned individual initiative at a time when the world is facing fundamental change and the United States government is so indifferent or so slow in its response.

Most Americans are probably ahead of their government today in willingness to respond to immediate needs for food relief But deeper change in American attitudes toward food and its components is crucial if mass; starvation in the world is to be averted.

A Change

If we cut back our appetits for meat, we could in time release large amounts of grain for human instead of animal consumption. If we changed our policy on fertilizer to encourage instead of discourage its export. we would save money as well as Bangladesh will grow more than twice as much additional grain as the same ton on a heavily fertilized field in Iowa. Helping others to grow their own food will actually reduce inflationary pressure on American food sun.

At the World Food Conference in Rome the well-fed countries, especially the United States. have been under heavy pressure to share with the hungry. That just a preview of what international life is going to be like in the coming decades.

Not only on food but on all that goes into the standard of life, the miserable of the earth will be demanding change in the grotesque inequality that now prevails. They will in effect be insisting that rich countries use less of the world's resources. And they will be able to press for that change with something stronger than appeals to justice.

'Turning Point'

A second report to the Club of Rome on world resources and growth, "Mankind at the Turning Point," has just been published. Its anthors, Mihajlo Mesarovic and Eduard Pestel, say industrialized countries must stop "further overdevelopment" and limit their use of finite resources, in order to help others find a way out . of poverty. Then, in a sentence,they say out loud what worries... many thoughtful persons looking at the future in an unequal world:

"Unless this lesson is learned in time, there will be a thousand desperadoes terrorizing these who are now rich, and eventually nuclear blackmail and terror will paralyze further orderly devel-

In short, self-interest requires Americans and the other fortunate of the earth to make do with less. The transition to a philosophy of conservation and conomy will not be easy for people brought np in the belief that there will always be more that it is doing the Lord's work to consume. But the process must begin. One small, personal and therefore significant step would be the individual decision to go without food the Thursday before Thanksgiving.

'The Mogul of Ambassadors'

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON. — Unpublished to the House impeachment in- lionaire Maryland socialite, to inevidence collected by the impeachment investigation shows that Peter Flanigan, nominated by President Ford as ambassador to Spain, was President Nixon's "mogul of ambassadors" intimately involved in finding plush diplomatic posts for generous Republican campaign contributors.

Secret White House correspondence and confidential interviews of Nixon aides by impeachment investigators partially contradict Flanigan's sworn testimony to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; he testified on Oct. 2 at the one-day hearing on his nomination that he was not involved in brokering political ambassadorships. The conflicting evidence has since been given the Senate committee, causing even some Republican senators supporting Figures privately to question Mr. Ford's decision to resubmit the nomination to Con-

Moreover, contrary to Flanigan's claims that he was cleared by the Watergate special prosecutor. he is under active investigation on several fronts. That Mr. Ford intent on adding a nasty Senate confirmation fight to his heavy burden suggests inadequacles in decision-making that transcend Peter Flanigan. The most serious charge raised on Oct. 2 stemmed from testimony

Symington soon tired of Trinidad and asked Kalmbach for a European post (first choice: Spain), promising additional contributions of $100,000. He met with Flanigan in June, 1970, writing him afterward he felt "very encouraged that I have your interest and understanding concerning the future."

Flanigan did block a European post for Symington ("a personalpost for Symington ("a personality thing," Kalmbach testified). But the new evidence scarcely shows him a disintensived party. Saudis Plan 38-Cent Oil Price Cut

RIYADH, Saudi Armin Nov. 14 (AP-DJ).—
Saudi Arabia has a proming five back to the consumers the increased resembles it would apparently stand to gain from the lax and royally increases announced saries this week in Abu Dhabi, Sheikh Ahmad tail Yamani, minister for petroleum, said today.

Sheikh Yamani suggested that the workings of the plantwould either be announced or become apparent in about a week. He said Saudi Arabia would splicit the cooperation of consumers in consuming countries to make the plan work, and he minted it could mean reducing the share of crude oil produced by Arabian American Oil Co. which its four American shareholders are allowed to buy back.

Shelkh Yamani said the Saudi plan would cut the world market price for oil by no less than 38 cents a barrel from a market price which he estimated averages between $10.50 and $11 a barrel. The market price, or $3 per cent of the posted price for light Arabian crude, the Saudi benchmark grade, has been $10.84 a barrel.

He said the Saudi policy is to take from the oll companies and to give to the consumers. "I want to deny categorically that Saudi Arabia wants to make additional money. We don't want a singla dollar from what took place in Abu Dhabi. We want to pass it completely to the

"We know ahead of time that this will take away from the United States all the additional income they get from their taxes on the oil companies," the shelkh said.

Drop in Sugar Prices Puzzles Dealers

London sugar dealers are pazzled by a sudden alump in sugar prices after a month of sharp rises.

Trading was sluggish today after a sudden reversal from limitsup to limits-down in New York last night.

Limits-up means that future deliveries cannot rise more than £20 a ton over the previous day's midday closing call. In New York the limit is 2 cents a pound. Conversely, limits-down means prices cannot drop under the same amount. The limits period lasts 24 hours. For nearly a month both markets have been trading limits-up.

Dealers in London say there may be a movement under way to force world sugar prices down. Yesterday the Dominican Republic withdrew from the market because it considered bids too

As a result, very little sugar has been offered on the London Terminal Market

December spot deliveries tased £10 a ton and were traded in early contracts at £585.50 a ton. March futures were quoted at £556.50, down £20 a ton.

The London daily price, at which domestic sugar imports are treated, was off £25 a ton to £565 a ton.

Traders are puzzled because while prices eased, news from all the sugar-growing areas was gloomy. Dealers said they will stick by their predictions that the market will stay bullish. Both New York and London are currently selling spot sugar at 55.30 to 55.40 cents a pound.

Chemical Bank is building a platform to search for oil from the North Sea to the North Slope.

Our platform is financial. But it is as solid as the eight massive pillars on this North Sea rig.

It is one of the many $25 million structures that Chemical Bank's worldwide project finance groups are handling to help tap the vast North Sea fields.

Chemical Bank is involved in many other major North Sea projects too. Like the Ekofisk oil field off Norway and the Noordgastransport pipeline.

Our part in the worldwide search for energy.

Chemical Bank's Petroleum and Minerals Division in London and New York is helping to finance the worldwide search for and production of gas and oil.

We played a part in the very first financing deal for the exploration of the Alaskan North Slope. And we are financing a crude oil pipeline that spans Canada from Alberta to Ontario.

In Southern Italy, we have arranged the financing of a major petro-chemical complex.

Chemical Bank is the agent and co-manager of a syndicate of 45 international banks involved in a multimillion dollar loan to the Algerian state oil and gas concern, Sonatrach. And we are leading the group that will lease four Liquefied Natural Gas tankers to sail between Indonesia and Japan.

Our engineers and geologists are also bankers.

Our ability to undertake such vast projects many on a non-recourse basis - is not limited to the search for energy. But it is a good example of the kind of expertise that has made us a leader in every area of international project financing.

The banking experts at our Petroleum and Minerals Division include geologists and engineers. As scientists, they make professional judgments on the value of a project. And as bankers, they arrange innovative and imaginative financing.

If your project could use a firm financial platform, talk to your Chemical Bank representative.

RCM review

The following is the text of the annual statement to shareholders, dated 22 October 1974, by the Chairman of Roen Consolidated Wines Limited, the Han, E.A. Keshitz MP.

Lastyear reference was made by kt/ predecessor to certain announcements made by kt/ predecessor to certain announcements made by the Excellency the President of the Republic of Zambha regarding the wining bedeath. Some of these areasonas, intended to give more effective control of the Industry to the Government and people of Zambha, were implemented within steeks of President Kaunda's estatement of 31 Anguet 1973. Since then further steps in this direction have been taken. In February 1974 Mr D A R Phin was expointed an 'A' director and managing director-designate of RCIA. I welcome than to the Board togother with Messrs. LJ Mwanamshiku and LM Lishamwa. The 'A' ordinary shares, representing 51 per cent of the issued capital of the company, which were previously held by Mindeco Limited and were to have been transferred to the Minister of France to hold on beletif of the Government, are now in the name of Zambla Industrial and Mining Corporation. Limited. The Metal Marketing Corporation Limited. The Metal Marketing Corporation between the repolitions with AMAX as a pelude to the realization of President Kaunda's desire that RCM should be self-sufficient in the provision of the management and technical sidils required for the running of its mines have virtually been constituted in almost every detail, excent for the issue of compensation for the termination of the Selecand Monagement of RCM will be effected as expeditiously as possible. The talks have been conducted in a manner that will allow for the consciledition of the manner that will allow for the consciledition of the manner that will allow for the consciledition of the manner that will allow for the consciledition of the manner that will allow for the manner that will allow for the manner that will allow for the consciledition of the manner that will allow for the manner than will the maintenance of the high standards of performance which have now virtually become a way of tile with RCM. I will now deal with the swents and achievement of the past year in greater detail against the background of recent occurrence and other developments which effect, either directly or indirectly, the copper mining industry in general and our oten company in particular.

PRODUCTION AND SALES
Minerecoverable production of copper was 14 736 torans higher than in the prodous year, as shown in the figures below for each mine:

| Mine production in touries | 1973/74 | 1972/73 |
|-------------------------------|---------|---------|
| Mufalica | 128545 | 120705 |
| Lumshya including Baluba | 89 325 | 84756 |
| Chambishi | 43 690 | 36 158 |
| Chibulura | 17 E70 | 22,570 |
| Kelengwa* | 11665 | 12170 |
| | 291 095 | 276 359 |

Higher production was achieved at Mufathra, Luanshya and Chambishi as compared with last year. The increase at Mufatira was estimatable to further recovery from the effects of the 1970 accident. At Luanshya it was due to higher output from the Baluba section and at Chambishi the quantity as well as the copper context of ore crushed for meathers twee higher. At Chambishi the quantity as well as the copper context of ore crushed for meathers twee higher. At Chambishi production was egoin adversely affected by leaves one grades, in general operations were affected by shortages of materials and spare.

Perts, Spare capacity in the company's treatment plants was utilized for toil treatment on behalf of Nothings Compatibated Copper Mines Limited. Finished copper production was 281 121 tonnes as compared with last year's 275 788 tonnes. Sales amounted to 277 736 tonnes at an everage price of K617 lost year.

PRODUCTION COSTS
The severage cost of finished copper production Low mine increased by about 13 per cent over the period under review. In view of the greater increases in the prices of some major raw materials, particularly stept and oil-based products, which occurred during the year and the increased transport costs since the closure of the Rhodeslan border, I regard the percentage Increase in production costs as reasonable and an Indication of a real effort on the part of management in trying to keep costs down.
However, the increase during the 1974/75 finential year is expected to be higher as it will reflect the full impact of increased prices of raw materials which came into force towards the end of the financial year ended 30 June 1974.

Group sales proposeds, derived mein'y from the sele of copper, amounted to K408 million compared with K237 million in the previous year. Average gross revenue pertonne of copper increased from K817 to K1 444 per tonne. This increase was brought about by sharply rising prices in the third and foorth quarters of the year. Profit before tax was K223 million, an increase of K147 million. The net profit was K78.4 million as egainst K48.2 million for the passions year; K35 million was appropriated to receive year; K35 million was appropriated to receive year; K48.9 million storm liabilities at the year and were K48.9 million showing an increase of K3 million over the figure at the end of the previous year. COPPER MARKET

Copper prices communed the strong upward trend initiated during the previous financial year and on 1 April 1974 the cash whether celler's price established an ell-time record of K2.158 per tonue. However, this piratacle marked the turning points and a downward trend, which has penisted since the earl of the year under review, ensued. The monthly average for each wineber seller's price was K1.300 per tonne in July, rising to K1.343 in May and falling to K1.686 in June. Labour and related difficulties in some industrialised countries, and problems treated by high oil prices, caused a downturn in the economic activities of these countries at the beginning of the second half of the year. Ho were, the copper supply situation remained tight for most of the year. LME copper stocks felt from 42.300 tonnes at the end of March 1874 but nose to 23 500 tomes at the end of Jame. Since then they have continued to itse steedily, indicating an easing off in the supply and demand situation.

INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS
Once again I am happy to report a good year,
There were two miner stoppages.
A time-year agreement with the Mineworkers' Union of Zambis on wages and conditions of sarvice took effect from 1 November 1973, it was similar in form and content to the three-year agreement that applied on that date. An agreement for improved referement benefits took effect on 1 March 1974.

Zambianization made steerly progress, elderugh there were some diseppointments, but perficulted good progress were made in the training of artisons, helping to reduce a surjor area of expeniate dependence. The industry now sponsors should not the steering the expensions of the steering the steering the conditions at the steering the establish conditions of service appropriate to the establish of the reason contract stuff that we become of files employment. It is a complex almost would be to reason of production in a highly bechoose indicate, and Zambianization would be quite impossible without their assistance.

My colleagues on the board and others within the industry are reviewing the whole concept of Zambianization, it certainly has never been Government policy or intention to put a Zambian everywhere in the mining industry by a given, data. This is not only inconsistent with Zambia's view about the international community of and one of which she is an active member but it is also patently dangerous for Zambia's own well-being-Technical progress connect be made by outling onselves off from outside contacts. Many Zambians will want to invasion their experience elsawhere and so we shall be expected to play

What however, must be stated unequivocally is that most, if not all, the key decision-making or controlling positions will need to be filled by expelie, experienced and dedicated Zambians as soon as possible bearing in mind the need to maintain safety, efficiency and productivity on the mines. This will ontail progrous selection and intensive training programmes for those who show promise but they will need the support and assistance of experienced staff for some time. Support for the University of Zambia will have to be increased and the whole suscesses will cost a lot in money, affort, disappointment and maybe sometimes tours.

But the measures shocurced by His Excellency the Presidentiast year is August will mean.

nothing if this commitment is not made and I can only hope that the shareholders, those who work on the mines, and the public at large will beer with us on the board and give us a little longer to work through these momentous times.

Various transport problems encountered si January 1973 in routing materials and equinio Zumbia combined. Since January 197 ports of Dar es Salsam and Mombiesa, and recently Lobino, have experienced congest varying degrees. The inflationary pressures afficting the major parts of the world were directly responsible for substantial price increases of most supplies during the second half of the year, nationals.

substantial price increases of most supplies during the second half of the year, particularly in respect of 68-based products. This, together with increased costs arising from establishing new sources of supply and increased transport charges, has resulted in substantially increased total costs.

CONCLUSION

Since the last Chairman's statement, made by my producessor, Mr Humphrey Mulemba, on 22 October 1973, we have enjoyed bucyant pices for copper due to the extraordinarity good business condicions that obtained in most indicatalized countries for the greater new extensions.

CONCLUSION

Since the less Chairman's statement, made by my predecessor, Mr Humphrey Mulemba, on 22 October 1973, we have enjoyed buoyant prices for copper due to the extraordinarily good business conditions that obtained in most industration countries for the greater part of the past year. In the less few mooths, however, there has developed in those countries a general fueling that a recession, if not a depression, may develop—something which, if it mandelines, is bound to affect our results in the country year servicely.

The price of copper today is KSS2 per tonne which is substantially below the everage for lest year.

The price of copper today is K862 per tonne which is substantially below the average for lest year. People in many countries are pessimistic on the general global business cuttook. While I do not wish to appear to be more knowledgeable than they are on conditions in their own countries I do feel that if the world's statement act with the co-operation which is necessary in order to connect the present economic makine, they should be able to avoid dislocations of trade which could so seriously affect us as to imming with our development programmes. In any case the Zambian copper industry of which RCM is a very important part is in excellent chape and quite well-equipped to compete technologically, commercially and cost-wise with any other comparable copper industry in the world. We have therefore on reason to look at the future with any foreboding. On the contrary, we are in a state of readiness to face the challenges that is eleed, doing everything possible to madmics production and minimize costs through efficiency and dedication to doty.

Zambia is an active member of CIPEC and it is our hope that the consuming countries will undesstand the worles of producing countries in regard to the fluctuating prices of copper.

CIPEC is looking forward to closer collaboration between the consumers and producers so as to stabilize prices and to arrive at an accommodation in pusuit of sound intensitional tacks and commissions development precises. Zembia will give full support to this policy and the board of RCM is united in first direction as well.

That the company is in such a healthy state is due largely to the uniting effects of my fellow directors, management and all employees of the competence during his tenure of office. To the other former directors also — Mesers, D C competence during his tenure of diffice. To the other former directors also - Messas. D C Muleisho. E G Kasonde and I H Mochangwe - I wish to pay my thrute.

As I said earlier the coming year may be fiscight with trials, come of them brought about by extensificates beyond our control. But the realisance of Zembla's copper mining industry is such that no matter what the challenges, your company can afford to face the fature with an air of calm confidence.

Interim Statement Rorento as per 1st November 1974

ROBENTO shares became listed on the Amsterdam Stock Exchange in July 1974. Since then a period of approximately three months has elapsed, and we therefore wish to inform you about the company's activities during this period.

15'-2 5'-2 Whypuglind John St. 18'-2 Whypuglind St. 18'-2 Whipuglind St.

At inception, ROBENTO's investment sims were defined as follows: "ROBENTO invests in fixed-interest securities with the aim of attaining for shareholders a net income as high as possible combined with a share price as stable as possible."

The short period during which your company has been active has proved very satisfactory. At the oniset, we elected to remain liquid to the extent of the relatively high percentage of approximately 25 % in order to take advantage of high interest rates then obtainable in the money market. During the entire period, our portfolio was exclusively in Durch guilder assets, our expectation being that the guilder would prove stronger than most other currencies.

In the second half of the period under review we selectively enlarged our bond portfolio. As a consequence we were able to benefit to the full from the rise in Dutch bond prices in the last two weeks of October. As a result of this investment policy, our cash position, accumulated interest not included, was reduced to 9 %.

The investment result was reflected in an increase of our share price including accrued interest from fis. 100 on 3rd July to fis. 106.50 on 31st October. With in mind the increasing number of non-Dutch shareholders, we have included a table showing the price appreciation of RORENTO in U.S. Dollars, D. Marks, Pounds Sterling, French Francs, Swiss Francs and Italian Lire. From this it can be seen that the appreciation of the RORENTO share expressed in four out of the six above-mentioned currencies, was higher than the increase in guilders. Our earlier meotioned confidence in the guilder seems not to have been misplaced.

Thanks to its natural gas, the Dutch economy has proved unexpectedly resilient. To put it simply. Holland is proving able to pay its increased oil import bill by means of increased receipts from gas exports. As a result, a surplus on the Dutch balance of payments is expected in 1974 and 1975. Consequently we expect also for the near future that the guilder will remain a strong currency.

In these circumstances, we feel that we are justified in maintaining our current policy of investing mainly in guilder assets. Our international shareholders should benefit accordingly.

The Shareholders Account

RORENTO shareholders who wish to, can avail themselves - free of charge - of the facility of depositing with, and holding their shares through, ROBECO S.A. GENEVE, a Swiss subsidiary company. *MARGARET'S TELLIN' ME ALL ABOUT HER NEW HAIR-DO."

DOG' SOLDIERS

By Robert Stone. 342 pages. Houghton Mifflin. $8.95.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

"Dog Soldiers," his first book Fito appear since his prodi-giously talented first novel, "A Hall of Mirrors," appeared seven years ago, Robert Stone has written a version of The Treasure of the Sierra Madre" in which the object of human greed is not gold dust, but three kilograms pure unadulterated heroin. The story begins in South Viet-nam, where a quasi-journalist named John Converse decides to invest his nest egg in the "three keys of skag." picks it up from an American connection and passes it on to a Marine buddy of his named Raymond Hicks, who is surposed to surposed it who is supposed to smuggle it. Stateside and pass it to Con-verse's wife, Marge, who in turn will unload it for a clear $30,000 profit. All goes according to plan until Hicks gets the stuff to San Francisco. But then in a series of scenes so elliptical and hip to the vernacular of the drug culture that by comparison read-ing George V. Higgins and John Le Carre seems like decoding "Pat the Bunny"—Hicks and his drugs get intercepted by operators connected with a federal regulatory agency; Hicks and Marge Converse grab the heroin and run for a hippie retreat on a mountaintop near the Mexican border; the feds take Converse as a hostage to ransom back the heroin; and the parties converge on the mountain to contest the evil treasure.

What does it all add up to? Considerably more than the precautionary tale of human greed and corruption it seems to be on the surface. True, Mr. Stone repeats some of the relatively minor artistic mistakes he made in "A Hall of Mirrors." . Just as the various levels of reality in his first novel at times seemed onsistent with one another, the tone of "Dog Soldiers" does not always dovetail with its larger purpose. For instance, so brutal and amoral are the two agents provocateurs who kidnap Converse (one of them is an ex-convict who once heat a high school classmate td death with a tire fron just for catching himtrying to sneak into a movie theater), and so extreme are the methods they use to pry-infor-mation from Converse (at one point, they press his face against the burner of an electric stove), that one's sensibilities quickly grow numb, and it becomes difreceptive to the novel's more subtle ironies

And for instance, the story's denouement depends on the characters complex physical maneuvers in and around the hippie retreat on the mountaintop-on the literal level, the story of "Dog Soldiers" is an' novel's emotional impact depends on the almost hallucinogenic atmosphere the early scenes establish—on the emotional level the story is a "bad trip." the two levels don't really fit together; the elaborate plotting of the story's second half seems a bit trivial after the nightmarish experience of reading its first

But the effect of the whole has great power nonetheless. The resonant metaphor for the corruption that spreads as a result of America's involvement in Vietnam. The drugs are supplied by a Vietcong colonel who was once "an idealist" ("He used to be a very gung ho soldier at one time.") but who now wants to find out what all the best things in the world are and [get himself] one of each." They are sold to Converse by Charmian, a woman with shady con-nections to corrupt Washington politicians in her past, who now works in Saigon because she "likes" it ("It was a bit like Washington. People were nice.").

And the drugs are fought over by federal agents whose only interest in them is to turn them to their own profit (the leader of the agents has indirect connections with Charmian): by Raymond Hicks, who attaches no meaning to them at all, except as another object to be handled with "cool" ("It was a source of pride to Bicks thet he was at home in the world of objects. He believed that his close and respectful study of Japanese cul-ture had enabled him to manipulate matter in a simple disciplined manner, to move things correctly . . Even dealing he endeavored to maintain spiritual life."): and by Marge Converse, who simply needs them to sustain her growing habit. Dox soldiers all, they are—the people who fight without questionir: the issues.

Indeed, the only person win tries to confront the issues is Converse. But to him, "it was an error to insist on moral objections when they were overridden The last moral objection that Converse experienced in the traditional manner had been his reaction to the Great Elephant Zap of the previous year. That winter, the Military Advisory Command, Vietnam, had decided thet elephants were enemy agents because the NVA [North Vietnamese Army] used them to carry things, and there had ensued a scene worthy of the Ramayana Many-armed bundred-headed MACV had sent forth steel-bodied flying insects to destroy his enemies, the ele-phants. All over the country, whooping sweating gunners descended from the cloud cover to stampede the herds and mow them down with 7.63-millimeter machine guns . . .

". . . as for dope. Converse thought, and addicts—if the world is going to contain ele-phants pursued by flying men, people are just naturally going to want to get high."

So, the moral objections overridden, Converse purchases the heroin and sends it home in a briefcase. And In having him do so, Mr. Stone has effectively brought the entire war home, too.

There are subtle differences between the technique required formair games scored by match points, which require a measure of calculated greed, and team sines scored by match points, which require a cautious diet. A bid of three spades would cause the partnership to wander past three . no-trump and wind up in all probability with a minus score.

West leads a chib, and South counts three club tricks, two major-suit aces and four or five diamond tricks. Playing international match points, he should be willing to give up the overtrick in the interests of making the contract. He must be careful not to waste the nine, and the safest play is to cash the ace, conceivably catching a singleton fack. and then lead low to the nine. Equally good for the purposes of making nine tricks is the immediate low lead, which might catch West napping with J x x x. In a match-point game, the safety play would be questionable, since it will give up a significant overtrick more than half the time and gain only one deal in seven. However, South may take into account the possibility that other pairs will reach four hearts and fall by one trick. He can make sure of beating them by playing safely to make three no-trump.

NEW YORK, NOV. 14 (NYT) --The beyish grin is still there, and some boy still remains in Jim Chones, the man, Missing are the pressures on a young man forced to grow up too swiftly because he had been sized up as a valuable commodity. Often after looking over his statistics, he would confess, "I feel like I am stealing money,"

New Style In Hockey By Gerald Eskenazi

Flyers Put

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (NYT).—"No player is an individual," growled Fred Shero four years $20. "Hock-cy is a team game and the players must conform." He was talking as the new concin of a groveling team called the Philadelphia Flyers, another joke in the City of Erotherly Love's sports stories. Mustaches, long hair—never, shouted Shero, his close-cropped hair bristling. Loog hair was not only nonconformist, but "the players could catch cold if they leave their dress-ing room with their long hair wet," Shero said. A year later the Flyers bad hair. Cowboy Bill Flett looked as if he were trying out for the lead in a passion play. Bobby Clarke looked like a toothless Shirley Temple. Flyer personnel had all sorts of hair, from Flett's beard to the optometrist's goatce. It hasn't hurt a bit. The Flyers are the defending Stanley Cup champions, a team that started in 1967 without a sideburn.

Now, even Shero wears a Fu Manchu mustache. "You have to learn to adjust with the times. What tha hell," he explains. The contrast between Shero and his team, and the Rangers and their coach, Emile Francis, is sharp. About the time the Flyers were created, Francis started to make his presence felt on the club, weeding out smaller, poorer players, bringing in more taleot. The result has been extraordinary: Only one coach in league history over the long haul has a hetter wonlost percentage than Francis has. But Francis hasn't won a Stanley Cup or finished first—and the Flyers have. So this year the new Garden front office said in effect:

"Look you're not winning it witbout mustaches. See if you can win it with mustaches." Francis now permits mustaches. Now they are individuals egain. Derek Sanderson—the same player who insisted that when he raised his fingers to Garden fans be was making the peace sign—bas become a Ranger. Greg Polis, an intuitive left wing, is now a Ranger. Some rookies bave actually been given a chance, for a change. The New Yorkers, on paper, have a new look.

While they have finally made it to the second half of this century, they are hy no means radicalized. But Shero, who quit the Rangers organization hecause Francis never gave him chance to manage in the big leagues, has become a sort of Abbie Hoffman figure to hockey players.

Shero actually committed the outrage of hiring his own adviser after last season-the first NHL coach to have an termediary negotiate salary for him. He also committed the hlasphemy of going to Russia and studying the Soviet Union's hockey secrets. And finally, Shero reads a lot.

Some or all of it seems to be what the Flyers need. They beat the Rangers last night, 3-2.

CANTON, Ohio.—On election one else is talking to him, so he night millions and millions has plenty of time on his hands." of Americans watched as the NBC and ABC television networks announced that, according to their computers, Gov. John Gilligan had defeated former Gov. James Rhodes in Ohio.

Gov. Rhodes, like all of us, was so impressed by the fact that two out of three eo the election to Gov. Gilligan that he cooceded on the spot and went to bed certain he was a loser. When be woke np the next morning he discovered that, sl-

though the net- Buchwald

Work computers had declared Gilligan th winner, Rhodes was ahead by 13.000 votes. What went wrong?

I happened to be in Canton.

Ohio, so I went over to a sample precinct 50 miles away, one that both ABC and NBC had used to decide Gilligan had won. I will call the place Bellwether because the networks like to keep their sample precincts secret. Most of the people in town had long faces. The man in the coffee shop told me, 'We're oot proud of it. NBC and ABC were depending on us and we let them down." Another man at the counter said, "We've been a sample precinct for four elections. We've got 10 per cent Italians, 10 per cent Jews, 10 per cent Irish, 10 per ceot blacks, 40 per cent women and 20 per cent miscellaneous. We were a perfect mix." "But what happened?" I said.

"Farfel lied to the pollsters," a man at the end of the counter

"Who's Farfel?"

"He runs a gas station at the end of Main Street. After be came out of the voting booth, he told NBC and ABC he had voted for Gilligan, when in fact he had voted for Rhodes. They fed Farfel'e vote into their computers and, bang, they declared Gilligan the winner."

"But why would Farfel do "Why don't you ask him? No I went down to Farfel's gas station. I found him sitting next to his gas pump playing a

"Mr. Pariel." I said. "I hear you screwed up the sample precinct in Beliwether and got NBC and ABC to declare Gilligan the next governor of Ohic."

Farfel chuckled, "Yop, danged

"Why did you do it?"

"Wai, I tell you son. I'm one of these old-timers that don't like oo television hotshots telling me who won an election before all the votes have been counted. I mean, you turn on the set and some sharp feller in a $300 suit says. 'With 2 per cent of the vote in we declare John J. Pumpkin the next senator of Michigan.' Takes all the fun out of election night. I don't want no computer declaring who my governor is going to be. So this year I decided to fix 'em good. I'm half-Italian and half-English, so them oetwork boys had it figured out that if I voted for Gilligan, 350,000 Italians and 350,000 Church of England had voted for

But. Mr Farfel, the networks spend millions of dollars on computers and hire the best experts in the business. How can they run an bonest election if you lie to them in a sample precinct?"

"No skin off my nose. They should be reporting election results and not projecting win-oers on the basis of what some PhD feeds into a machine. I want to tell you, son, I never had so much fun as when NBC declared Gilligan the winner. I liked to have died laughing because I was the only one in the whole state who knew Rhodes was going to be our governor."

"You know, Mr. Farfel, everyhas decided that you can no longer be a sample precinct. It's quite a blow to the pride of the community. Don't you have the slightest regret for what you

Bill Mauldin: No Destroyer, Just Mischievous

By James Goldsborough

DARIS, Nov. 14 (IHT).—Bill Manidin swears he never destroyed anybody with his cartoons, and says it probably couldn't be done anyway. The last one who came close to it, he says, was Herblock with his attacks on McCartby (Joe), and even there. "Herb just contributed to McCarthy's downfall, he didn't

Returning to Europe for only the second time since he began his career here 30 years ago with the warting exploits of Willie and Joe, Mauldin propped himself op on bed in his Left Bank hotel to give his views on such things as cartoning and corruption. He swears that though he once ran for office as a Democrat, he doesn't take it easier on them than Republicans.

"I probably did twice as many critical cartoons during the first year of the Kennedy administration than during Nixon's first year." he said. "And then there was Bobby. I was constantly after him and his wiretapping." But Mauldin, who is here to accept a cartoning award, confesses that it's easier to attack conservatives than liberals.

"The really nasty, dangerous politicians are the pompous ones with oo sense of humar. It just happens that conservatives happen to be more pompous and have less sense of humar."

Collecting a Prize

Now 53, Mauldin is a vivacious man with a hearty laugh, still boyish despite an ample paunch and Genghis Khari beard. He is here for a cash prize from the French Fondation pour l'Art et la Recherche and to exhibit his drawings at the Bibliothèque Nationale until the end of the month. His colleague Patrick Oliphant stepped in to teach his weekly course on political cartooning at Yale University while he's away.

Mauldin admits he lacks the killer instinct of some of his colleagues. "I'm not out to destroy anyone, just poke i'm at them. The function of a cartoonist today is that of the court jesters: We try to keep the kings sace."

But personal grudges get mixed up in it. "Rerblock probably hated Nixon more than he hated McCarthy," he says, "and Oliphant and (Paul) Conrad were tough. Conrad was so powerful on Nixoo that the Los Angeles Times moved him off the

"My problem is I'm not a hater. I was critical of Herblock for his attacks on Nixon, then Nixon turned out to be such a shit

He doesn't think the savage cartoning played much of a role in Watergate. The age of giant-killing is over—the days of a Thomas Nast destroying Boss Tweed. Trouble with Nast was that when he ran out of giants he couldn't stop being a Mauldin generally shuns the unidimensional political swiri of Washington and doesn't even spend moch time in Chicago, at his base newspaper, the Sun-Times. Instead, when he's not at Yale, he and his wife Christine, 26, live in the mountains of Santa Fe, N.M., sending off his five a week cartoons to the Sun-Times by telecopier. He reads in bed at night, lets the impressions percolate during sleep and conceptualizes in the bathtub in the morning. "Its the heat and tranquility."

The cartoonists he most admires are Nast ("easily the greatest American cartoonist"), World War II cartoonist David Low ("a political scientist, a thinker, who just happened to draw-Nast could have used some Low in him"), Ronald Searle ("there's a whole school of American cartoonists who imitate Searle") and Frenchman Honoré Daumier ("If I had an influence in my life it

Mauldin is back at the top of his profession now after starting there with his "Up Front," then slipping out of sight after the war as he, like Willie and Joe, had trouble adjusting to peace-time. Mauldin finally dropped them completely in 1959. He doesn't worry too much about not being able to adjust from the vivid colors of the Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon years to the grays of the Ford era (T. always draw Ford in a football helmet"), because he thinks the issues are still there. He likes thinking a cartoonist has the same rotal role today as in the days of Hogarth and Danmier.

Strong Reaction

The greatest reaction to one of his cartoons recently came over something apparently as undramatic as population growth. Following the Bucharest population conference last August, Mauldin, angered that some of the overpopulated nations were refusing population controls, drew an "obviously Latin-type," sombrero, cigarillo, moustache and all. The man was walking behind an overflowing baby carriage being pulled by a too American-looking Grant Wood farmer ploughing a field. The caption read: "My job is breeding, yours is feeding." The Sun-Times received letters and in-person protests for weeks after the carboon, says Mauldin.

Though disposing of Willie and Joe, Mauldin has kept the style that made them famous. His cartoons still bear their wistful, ironic, slightly underdog character rather than the strident, personal tones of some other cartoonists.
